Some important regulations and things to note:

The site rules for theASCENT process are available on our website. theASCENT team is there to enforce these rules and may ask you to change your behaviour, especially if they think there is a risk to other people.

If you do not comply with the site rules, theASCENT team may ask you to leave the site. In such cases, it will be the responsibility of your parent/ guardian to facilitate transport, hence they must remain contactable throughout the weekends, and all other meetings.

During theASCENT process, your booking may be cancelled or you may be asked to leave the process at any time at our discretion. In this scenario you will have to still pay the remainder of the year's fee.

Proselytising

theASCENT is committed to giving delegates freedom in what they choose to listen to and be influenced by. We will not tolerate proselytising at our events.

theASCENT understands proselytising to be:

- Manipulative attitudes and practices that exploit people's needs, weaknesses or lack of education especially in situations of distress.

- Comparing two communities by unevenly emphasising the achievements and ideals of one against the weaknesses and practical problems of the other.

- Making unjust or uncharitable references to beliefs and practices and even ridiculing them.

- Employing any kind of physical violence, moral compulsion and psychological pressure.

- Using political, social or economic power as a means of winning new members for a religion.

- Extending explicit or implicit offers of material inducements, education or health care or using financial resources with the intention of making converts.

theASCENT's liability

We put as much information as we can on our website for guidance but we can't guarantee that the information is always accurate or up to date. The website and anything we describe on it may change without notice, including information about the process. We will not be liable for any damage or loss caused as a result of your doing, or not doing, anything as a result of using our website.

We do not guarantee that the website will be compatible with all hardware and software which you may be using to access the site. We will not be liable for damage (e.g. computer viruses) to your computer or other property as the result of your use of this website.
